The Secret Millionaire takes place in a darkened room lit by a lamp that hangs from a roll of carpet. This is slung over a couch-like-sculpture.

The sculpture is made from polystyrene with dyed fabric glued over it. A model of a stomach and intestines lays across it like a deflated figure.

The protagonist in the film explores an old apartment that is in the process of being renovated whilst the composition Gymnopedies by Erik Satie is rehearsed on a piano.

At moments in the film an endoscopic camera attempts to descend into the protagonists body.
